"For the Word of God and for the testimony of Jesus Christ" (Rev 1:9)

Vol. 10 No. 25

LORD'S DAY 18 JUNE 2006

Dear Readers,

Conditions for God's Blessings

The books, 1 Kings and 2 Kings, give us a lesson on the rise and fall of kings and nations. 1 Kings begins with the Golden Age of Solomon; 2 Kings ends with the kingdoms in disarray.

In 1 Kings Chapter 3, we learn that the Lord appeared to Solomon for the first time in Gibeon (v. 3 - 5). What high honour! God did this because Solomon loved the Lord, walked in His ways and kept His statutes and commandments. In that appearance, God said, "Ask what I shall give thee", to which Solomon wisely asked for "an understanding heart to judge thy people, that I may discern between good and bad". In this answer, Solomon acknowledged that wisdom comes from on high, that he was humbly dependent upon God in his kingship, and that the people whom he ruled were actually God's people.

This speech so pleased the Lord that God unstintingly gave him what he asked for (i.e. wisdom without equal both before and after his time) and added to that, much more. Thus God generously bestowed upon Solomon what he did not ask for, such as riches and honour. God also promised to grant him length of days if Solomon would walk in His ways and keep His statutes and commandments.

In Chapter 9:2, the Lord appeared to Solomon a second time, after the temple had been built. Again, what honour and endorsement! God said, "I have heard thy prayer and thy supplication.....I have hallowed this house, which thou hast built.....". It is one thing for Solomon to build and dedicate the temple, but it is quite another for God to hallow and inhabit it. The prerogative belongs to God.

On this occasion, God made a covenant with Solomon. The king's future and that of his people would be assured according to the conditions God set in Chapter 9:4 - 7. These four verses can be remembered as the covenant of if's and then's. Notice God's words here: ".... if thou wilt walk before me.....in integrity of heart, and in uprightness....." (v.4), "Then I will establish the throne of thy kingdom upon Israel forever....." (v.5); "But if ye shall at all turn from following me.....and will not keep my commandments and my statutes....." (v.6), "Then will I cut off Israel out of the land which I have given them....." (v.7). The conditions for us now are as clear as they were for Solomon then. If we will follow Him, then He will bless us; if we will not, then He will cut us off.

Although Solomon began well with God, his zeal diminished in his later years, as pagan wives turned his heart away from God. The king with a divided heart left behind a divided kingdom. For the next century, 1 Kings traces the twin histories of two sets of kings and...

...two nations of disobedient people who were indifferent to God's prophets and commandments. What we read in 2 Kings is an even sorer tale. Nineteen consecutive evil kings ruled in Israel, leading to captivity by Assyria. The picture was somewhat brighter in Judah, where godly kings occasionally emerged to reform the evils of their predecessors. In the end, however, sin outweighed righteousness and Judah was marched off to Babylon. The mistake of the evil kings was their failure to realize that every ruler is ultimately subject to God's kingship, and all earthly governments are answerable to God. God's warning is also clear to all of us who have been put in a position to rule or influence others.

What are the lessons for us today?

God notes our hearts' innermost thoughts, and our walk, and if there is integrity, uprightness in keeping His statutes and judgment, He will not only forgive us, but will also bless us richly. (8:39; 9:4)

God will answer our prayers if only they are not self-centred such as asking for riches and long life, but rather for wisdom and discernment in making judgments. (3:9, 10 & 11).

God keeps covenant with His people, and lest we forget, His covenant covers both blessings and chastisements (9:4 - 7).

We should honour God with the best. In Chapter 8: 63 - 64, Solomon gave 22,000 oxen and 120,000 sheep unto the Lord as offerings, more than what the altar could hold. Likewise, we can never be too fulsome in our praise of the Lord, too excessive in our love for Him who died on our behalf, and too wholehearted in our worship of Him who sits sovereign on the throne.

We should be focused such that all our efforts are directed to this end: "That all the people of the earth may know that the Lord is God, and that there is none else." (8:60)

"I will not leave you comfortless"

John 14:18

"I WILL COME TO YOU." This is the comfort of believers: they will never be alone in a hostile world. Believers when in darkness often fear that Jesus has forsaken them: this is natural but unscriptural; for He has said, "I will never leave thee nor forsake thee." His purposes require His presence with us, His love secures His presence to us. He will not leave us comfortless. We are absolutely dependent upon Him; our comfort is His gift, and the continuance of comfort depends on His presence and grace. He is the great source of comfort to His people; His presence and His comforts are generally connected; He may withhold them for a time to reprove, instruct, or correct us; but we may depend upon His comforts returning, for His promise is plain; it stands forever in His word; and His nature and love are the same. His precious word of promise should be believed, embraced and firmly trusted. We never shall be orphans, for our Father ever lives; our home waits to receive us, and our hope is imperishable. O beloved, plead this precious word of Jesus: expect Him to make it good: aim at His glory and your comforts are sure! He will not leave you comfortless.

Blest Holy Spirit, give me faith

To rest upon what my Saviour saith;

May I the promised comforts prove,

Of His divine eternal love:

And daily trust His faithfulness

Who will not leave me comfortless.

~~~~~
Father, in Thy love appear,

Pleased to bless me in Thy Son:

At Thy bidding I draw near,

Bowed and humble 'fore Thy throne.

In Thy blessed presence stay,

There to linger, there to pray.

MORNING

ACTS 21:17 "And when we were come to Jerusalem, the brethren received us gladly."

WHEREVER Christians meet they recognize in each other brothers. Though strangers before, they greet one another as friends. The Jews welcomed Paul and rejoiced to hear of the work among the Gentiles. But they knew there were many Jewish Christians who could not quite trust Paul. They thought he was disloyal to his nation. But what they had heard about him was not true. He had never taught the Jewish Christians to forsake Moses. Yet that is the way bigotry often does—it misstates the words of an opponent.

Sometimes, to remove false impressions, we have to do things it ought not to be necessary for us to do. Paul accepted the advice of the leaders that he should make an exhibition of his loyalty to Jewish rites to prove to suspicious people that he was really in sympathy with his own people.

It is right for us to seek to free ourselves from false charges when thereby we are promoting the good of the Church.

EVENING

THE POWER OF FAITH

GOD can use very weak and imperfect agents. He can do great things with poor instruments. But there is one kind of person He will not use. He will not send blessing to the world through an unbelieving heart. If you would be a vessel meet for the Master's use, you must have faith. Believe in Christ. Believe that He is able and willing to do the "greater things" which He has promised to do through His disciples. Open your heart to receive Him and all that He brings. Expect Him to do great things through you. If we have faith, there is no limit to what Christ will do for us. Faith lays our powers in Christ's hands, as the chisel lays itself in the hands of the sculptor for the carving of the marble statue.

We ask for two things – a sufficient portion for the day, and God's blessing with it. |                                                |                                                                           |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       |
