Let all the earth keep silence before Him -
Keep silence, keep silence before Him. Amen.

CHRISTIAN CONSUMERISM

Adapted from Maranatha Messenger, Sunday 15th July 2018

“Pastor, do you know why so and so left the church?” said a concerned member. “Yes,” replied the pastor. He went on to press for an answer, “What are you going to do?” The pastor paused for a little while and then said to him, “What can I do? When a member decides to leave the church for a “greener” pasture, nothing can dissuade him.”

Every year Life Church has a good number of transfers of membership. Why did they leave their former churches to join Life church? There are many reasons. Some join Life because they have moved to the vicinity. Others join Life because they have found her teaching solid and edifying. Still others join Life because they have found her members loving, caring and supportive. Ironically, some Lifers left Life because they have found her unloving, unfriendly and uncaring. And still others left because they have found the sermons dry, boring and impractical.

Some years ago, the Lord blessed us with a wonderful church camp. Every camper was blessed by the messages. I also thanked God for a blessed and refreshing time in the camp. One Sunday while I was fetching the speaker to church, I asked him a question, “Did any member of the church ever get tired of your preaching?” “To be very honest with you,” he said “yes.” Some even left the church. Strange! Isn't it!

What has gone wrong with the Church of Jesus Christ at large? Why do people hop from church to church? Is there an answer to the problem? The more I think of it, the more I believe the root of the problem is CHRISTIAN CONSUMERISM.

What is Christian Consumerism?

A consumer is somebody or something that consumes something, by eating it, drinking it, or using it up. What is his mind-set? A consumerist mentality is this: I bought a bowl of noodles to eat in the food court. After eating it, I made a comment to my friends that this is not as good as the one I ate in Chinatown. I don't think I will ever eat from this stall again.

On the surface, the comment may seem harmless. However, I think it does reveal one's inner self – the real me in me. For that reason, I would define consumerism as me-ism. Me-ism is humanism. The core teaching of humanism is “I,” “me” and “mine.”

What is the Christian consumerist mind-set? The Christian consumerist often asks: Are my expectations met? Are the preachers meeting and satisfying my felt needs? Does the style of worship suit me? Unfortunately, there is nothing about God's expectations being met. All that concerns him is “I,” “me” and “mine.”

Dearly beloved, do you possess such a consumerist mentality?

What Characterizes Christian Consumerism?

To begin with, let me say this (though it may be unpleasant to some members' ears): It is most unfortunate that Christian consumerism exists in our congregation. Allow me to highlight three attitudes that reflect a Christian consumerist mentality.

1. Self-Focused Egotism

Egotism exalts self and dethrones God. How is this self-centeredness evidenced in the church? When a self-focused Christian comes to church for worship, his orientation is not God but self. He comes to church to look for something that would satisfy his soul. He asks, "What do I get out of this sermon? Can the preacher meet my felt needs? Is he the kind of speaker I like to hear? What can I get from the church? (rather than "what can I give to God?")

By focusing on his own felt needs, he misses the whole point of worship, namely, God. Warren Wiersbe warns us, "If we look upon worship only as a means of getting something from God rather than giving something to God, then we make God our servant instead of our Lord and the elements of worship become a cheap formula for selfish gratification. When worship becomes pragmatic, it ceases to be worship."

Steven Charnock, in the same vein, also cautions us in his book The Existence and Attributes of God: When we believe that we should be satisfied, rather than that God should be glorified, we put God below ourselves as though He has been made for us, not we for Him. There is no greater blasphemy than using God as our servant and there is no worse place to do it than the realm of worship where we make the worship of God to end in ourselves rather than in God.

Self-centeredness is a form of idolatry. Idolatry is putting God below the base level of your preferences or rendering His purposes subservient to your desires or prioritizing your opinions above the God of the universe. God's house is erected for His glory and the fulfillment of His purposes. Therefore, do not try to rob God of His glory but glorify Him in worship and in whatsoever you do (1 Corinthians 10:31).

2. Self-Styled Pragmatism

Self-styled pragmatism is an attitude that seeks to serve God on its own terms and in its own wisdom. A self-styled Christian serves God as he sees fit. He is not motivated by God's glory nor does he feel compelled to honour God's commands. His Christian practice is according to his own preconceived notions rather than the objective parameters of the Holy Scripture.

Self-styled pragmatism is deceitful, cunning and subtle. A self-styled Christian often maintains an outward appearance of godliness. Unlike the self-focused Christian, he is not overtly self-seeking. Rather he seeks to be involved as long as the involvement is according to his terms and for his glory. However, if he cannot get his terms and conditions met, he will not want to have anything to do with it.

God's work is to be done in God's way. It is not to be done according to your terms and conditions and descriptions. The Bible gives us a clear guidance how God's work should be done. There is no one-man show in the work of the Lord. God and God's people are involved in it. Nehemiah was a good example. He did not believe in a one-man ministry.

Having surveyed the broken wall of Jerusalem, he called God's people together and told them the tragic condition they are in and challenged them to do something about it. And the people responded enthusiastically. With great zeal they put their hands together and rebuilt the broken wall of Jerusalem in 52 days (Nehemiah 2:11-6:15).

Brethren, may I encourage each and every one of you to give some thought how you can build up the broken walls of Maranatha so that it can continue to be a powerful witness for Christ in the eastern part of Singapore.

3. Self-Absorbed Individualism

A self-absorbed individual possesses an attitude that demands independence and seeks to be left alone. He is a solo lobo (lone wolf), a lone ranger or a maverick. As much as possible, he disregards church authority. He may be a faithful member of the church (in terms of attendance), but he has no commitment to the church or her ministry, and therefore, he has no accountability to the leadership of the church. A self-absorbed individual Christian is characterized by his self-sufficiency. He avoids scrutiny and rejects any spiritual help from the Body of Christ. He takes only what he wants to take, rejecting everything else as unnecessary to his own self-sufficiency. Solomon said that he who separates himself seeks his own desire and quarrels against all sound wisdom (Proverbs 18:1).

Isolation harms the Body of Christ. Human beings were not designed to be lone rangers. You and I were made to live in a community. The church is a local community of believers (Hebrews 10:25). Christians are to be absorbed with Christ (Philippians 1:21) and concerned with the needs of others (Philippians 2:1-4; Acts 2:44, 45).

Dearly beloved, Christian consumerism is a mind-set. You need to eradicate it once and for all. Therefore, may I urge you to examine yourselves (2 Corinthians 13:5), make an effort to transform all self-centered perspectives into God-centered purposes (Romans 12:1, 2), submit gladly to God's expectations, not yours (Acts 9:6), and play an active role in the life of the church, for self-absorbed individualism hurts the Body of Christ. Amen.

SHORTER CATECHISM QUESTION 28
Q: Wherein consisteth Christ's exaltation? A: Christ's exaltation consisteth in his rising again from the dead on the third day, in ascending up into heaven, in SITTING AT THE RIGHT HAND OF GOD the Father, and in coming to judge the world at the last day.
Comments: Exaltation means a rising from meanness to greatness. Christ's exaltation consists in the following particulars: 1. In rising from the dead; 2. In ascending up into heaven; 3. In sitting at God's right hand; 4. In being appointed to judge the world. This is the state in which our Saviour is now.
